Death-bed Advice of Hon. Simon Smirk. BY W. O. EATON.

Simon Smirk was on his death bed. His son Samuel was standing by his side, and while he was holding his father's hand, his father spoke to him as follows:

"Sammy, I am dying-at the age of fifty-five. wish you to pay strict attention to my dying advice. "Father, I will."

"I will father." From the same source we learn that Bugeaud had a pious mother. In the history of his eventful life, this seems to have been the only quarter in which good influence was exerted upon his heart. His mother's voice alone warned him of his danger, and spoke to him of eternity ; all others influences led him astray. In the camp he heard of God only in blasphemy. In earthly place and power. In the saloons of Paris he heard wit mocking, and philosophy denouncing the religion of youth. The quiet voice that had warned him, and prayed with him, was, alas for him? overborne and lost in the midst of these babbling voices
